Where Have You Been?

THIS QUESTION IS SO OFTEN ASKED, I will answer for the whole State. The name FARRER & HERRING seems as familiar all over this country as Washington and Lee, or Fairbanks and Vanderbilt, although over 20 years since the little misunderstanding, and since which we have not been able to cover the entire South as before the war. We now say, we have been South and are in Mississippi; and have come to stay. It is said American people love to be humbugged. It is false. They do not, but they are always willing to take hold of something new and cheap, but when they are in a condition to pay good prices they want the best. Hence, now they want to see us, and say, "Where have you been?" We want the CLARION, and we have bought cheap Safes, and find our mistake. Your old Safes are better, and we know your Champion, now most be far ahead of any other. We find you have lots of new Champion Safes in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and even over in Alabama we notice you placed the best Safe in all the South. And now we are glad you have come and sold a Safe Deposit Safe, and many others in Vicksburg, and still another in Jackson—the best in the State.

We believe before many months we will be able to convince you the best, as of old, is the cheapest, and that if our old leader has fallen, his partner still lives, and if you would know of the wonderful advances in the science of safe making, such as Dry Chemical filing, whereby we make the very first self-produce its own destroyer, and is burglar-proof work, Franklinite, a metal far ahead of anything in use as drill-proof metal when used in connection with Steel—all of which are patented and used in the HERRING CLARION SAFE, and if you are not called upon in time drop a line to—
FARRER & HERRING, Philadelphia.
And you will get an answer, and their Agent, C. WOMAN, will see you.

The Sun.

NEW YORK 1884.

About sixty millions copies of THE SUN have gone out of our establishment during the past twelve months.

If you were to paste end to end all the columns of all THE SUNS printed and sold last year you would get a continuous strip of interesting information, common sense, wisdom, sound doctrine and sane wit long enough to reach from Printing House square to the top of Mount Olympus in the moon, then back to Printing House square, and then three-quarters of the way back to the moon again.

But THE SUN is written for the inhabitants of the earth; this same strip of intelligence would girdle the globe twenty-seven or twenty-eight times.

It is every boy of a copy of THE SUN during the past year has spent only one hour over it, and if his wife or his grandfather has spent another hour, this newspaper in 1883 has afforded the human race thirteen thousand years of steady reading, sight and day.

It is only by little calculations like these that you can form any idea of the circulation of the most popular of American newspapers, or of its influence on the opinions and actions of American men and women.

THE SUN is, and will continue to be, a newspaper which tells the truth without fear of consequences, which gets at the facts no matter how much the process costs, which presents the news of all the world without waste of words and in the most readable shape, which is working with all its heart for the cause of honest government, and which therefore believes that the Republican party must go, and must go in this coming year of our Lord, 1884.

If you know THE SUN, you like it already, and you will read it with accustomed diligence and profit, during what is sure to be the most interesting year in its history. If you do not yet know THE SUN, it is high time to get into its sunshine.

TERMS TO MAIL SUBSCRIBERS:

The several editions of THE SUN are sent by mail, postpaid, as follows:

DAILY.—$3 a month, $6 a year, with Sunday Edition, $7.

SUNDAY.—Eight pages. This edition furnishes the current news of the world, special articles of exceptional interest to everybody, and literary reviews of new books of the highest merit.

WEEKLY.—$1 a year. Eight pages of the best matter of the daily issue; an Agricultural Department of unequalled value, special market reports, and literary, scientific, and domestic intelligence make THE WEEKLY SUN the newspaper of the farmer's household. To clubs of ten $7, an extra copy free. Address: T. W. INGALL, Publisher, THE SUN, N. Y. CITY.

The Appeal for 1884.

THE APPEAL, having for forty-three years been recognized as the exponent of Southern thought, Southern politics and Southern industry, and shared the vicissitudes of the Southern people, it is now participating in their prosperity. Its increase in circulation and business has been steady and unbroken. It has many more readers now than ever before in its long history, and it will be the aim of the management to deserve a continuance of this patronage by the publication of a broad, full, complete, enterprising journal, commensurate with the growth of the city, the prosperity of the South, and shall rank with the large and influential papers of other great cities. It has and will have correspondents at all important points contributory to Memphis; and will use, as it is now doing the telegraph freely for its own special reports of all interesting events. The year 1884 promises to be one of the most important in this crowded and eventful century. It will witness a Presidential election of unusual interest, and in this great contest the APPEAL will be where it has always been—the friend and advocate of the Democratic party. The APPEAL for 1884 will present to its readers daily a faithful and full record of current events.

A Remarkable Feat of Memory.

A gentleman writes to the Washington Star recalling the following incident in the early legal experience of the late David Paul Brown, of Philadelphia, as related in his work "The Forum and the Bar."

He was a young practitioner (I believe only then about three years at the bar) when a Judge of Pennsylvania was impeached and tried before the Senate or House. The impeached Judge selected Mr. Brown as his counsel, who expressed doubt of the wisdom of his selection. The Judge insisted and Brown accepted the responsibility.

The trial was protracted through several days in examining numerous witnesses. The last day was reached near its close and the members, witnesses, counsel and spectators, wearied with the labors of the trial, hastened from the State House pell mell for their hotels and lodgings for dinner. So rapid was the exodus that Brown lost his head in hustling his notes of direct and cross-examination into the drawers of his desk without thought that the whole was to be reviewed, digested and arranged for argument next day. After dinner and a cigar while walking up and down the hotel parlor, it flashed upon him that his papers were locked up in the State House. Quick as thought he started for the building only to find it dark and securely bolted against egress. He inquired for the janitor only to find that he had gone several miles from Harrisburg. Late bed time came and all prospect of "getting access to the coveted papers vanished. Desperate, he sought his room, undressed and went to bed with bitter thoughts at the mortifying exhibition he would make of himself on the morrow when he had to begin the argument. As there was no help his only thought was sleep, to escape for thought. But sleep refused his summons. As thought followed his mind became calmer. Then he endeavored to recall some of the evidence, taking up the witnesses in the order of examination. The effort was well repaid. As each one went before his mind the testimony was read without aid from photography or manuscript of any kind, and each material point indelibly reproduced in his mind and the whole analyzed for prosecution and defense. This mental effort carried him in the small hour. Then he snatched a few hours' repose, arose refreshed, breakfasted, required the scene of trial, opened the key and vindicated his effort and secured his acquittal, and without having recourse to his notes at all.

His friends congratulated him on his brilliant effort, which he himself regarded as one of the greatest efforts of his long years of practice.

Laugh More.

Washington Gazette.]

Mothers do not laugh enough. The housekeeping is so onerous, the children so often trying to nerves and temper, the servants most exasperating and even John kind good husband that he is, cannot understand all our vexations and discouragements, and so we need to feel that it is too much for the household to depend on us, in addition to all our cares, for social sunshine as well. Yet the household does, and it must. Father may be bright and cherry, his laugh ring out, but if the mother's laugh fails, even the father's cheerfulness seems to lose much of its infection. In the sad but forcible lines of one of Joanna Baillie's dramas—

Her little child had caught the trick of grief And sighed amid its playthings—

we may catch a glimpse of the stern repression life at Bothwells Manor, where the "repressions of all emotion, even the gentlest, seems to have been the constant lesson." I remember well hearing a lady say "when a child I used to wish so often that my mother would look cheerful."

Then laugh, mother, even if you do feel almost to weary to exert the social muscles, and you have to make a pitiful effort which comes high bringing tears or a laugh. You will feel better for the effort, and so will the children. The little ones, unconsciously to you and themselves are catching the very phrases of countenance which will go far to brighten or cloud some future home.

Flying Money.

While riding on top of a freight car in Chicago last Saturday, going to and from the fair grounds, C. W. Lefler noticed a piece of paper flying toward him over the tops of the cars. The train was running at the rate of five or six miles an hour, and the bit of paper when first seen was distant some four or five car lengths. It came directly toward him, and kept on coming until it struck him near his vest watch pocket. He grabbed it, held on to it, scanned it, and ascertained that it was a genuine one dollar bill. Where it came from, or how it got started will remain a mystery. It is not every day that money is obtained in that way—Aurora (Ill.) Beacon.

A MARRIAGE DECLARED VOID.

New York, Jan. 5.—Judge Ferguson rendered a decision today in an action brought by Annie E. Higbee to compel J. Walter Vaughn to support her on the ground that a mock marriage at a church social at Flatbush was valid and that she was his wife. The judge dismissed the complaint, holding the marriage ceremony was not legal and Higbee is not the wife of Vaughn.

UTAH AFFAIRS.

SALT LAKE, Jan. 5.—This morning Mary Young, the 17th wife of the late Joseph Brigham, died at Salt Lake, of blood poisoning, in her 40th year. Sixteen mourning widows still survive the prophet, 14 of whom live in Salt Lake.

The monthly meeting of the Salt Lake Mormon priesthood was held this morning. Bishop John Sharp said that while in Washington recently he saw enough to convince him that no power but the Almighty could save the Mormon people. If God did not pity the ship, it would go down. Apostles Thatcher and Charles are now on their way to Washington, the church organ says, to attend to Utah affairs. Kate Field is in Salt
